OFFICER REPORTS

SAFETY REPORT

TERESA VARTY Safety Officer

First Aid Kits:

“No matter what bike you buy, you’ll drop it at least once.”

We’ve all heard the saying and being honest (come on guys and girls!), we’ve all done it at least once. Parking lot practice, coming to a stop at a red light, getting a sudden gust of wind when you’re setting off, the bike and you have gone down at least once.

Often, these ‘drops’ are the source of some good-natured laughs, a little bit of embarrassment, and a lesson in humility learned. Yet not all drops happen at low or no speed. What happens when you come across, or witness, a drop when going 100 KPH? What if you are doing a long-distance tour and come across someone that has cut their hand trying to fix the battery lead under the hood of their car? Having first aid knowledge is a plus, but having a ready-to-go first aid kit is the best kind of preparation for these scenarios.

Injuries You Expect to Encounter: The most common types of injuries experienced by motorcyclists are not major traumatic injuries like broken bones and major cuts. In fact, the most common type of injury is either a burn, via sunburn, accidental contact with the exhaust pipe, et al, or an eye injury, from riding with the visor cracked open or fully open with sunglasses that are not road protection rated. You can also expect scrapes and cuts from quite literally hitting the road, although the severity is often dictated by the road surface and the speed of travel. In the worst cases, you can expect to encounter fractures, breaks, and lacerations.

Let us examine what really should be in your motorcycle first aid and/or trauma kit.

Essentials:

- Two (2) pairs of Nitrile Gloves
- Anti-microbial, & 60% alcohol hand sanitizer
- Trauma shears
- First aid guidebook/field guide/cheat sheet
- Syringe of sterile saline for irrigation (if possible). A small 4oz bottle of eyewash solution is also viable here.
- Collapsible rescue breathing mask (with one way valve if available)
- Regular bandaids
- Four (4) butterfly bandages (can substitute adhesive sutures or steri-strips)

- Four (4) sealed, sterile gauze pads, at least 4 inches square
- Paper towels folded flat in a ziploc bag (for wiping/fluid cleanup)
- Burn and/or sting relief gel (Aloe vera based or infused highly recommended)
- Instant cold packs (we recommend at least two or more, as space allows)
- Three (3) or more triangle bandages. The most useful multitool in your kit
- Two (2) emergency blankets, if possible, one (1) if not

Really Nice To Have:

- Tourniquet with handle and strong strap (if possible)
- Heavy-duty ziploc/freezer bags for biohazardous waste and post-aid cleanup
- The Small Pharmacy bag
- Antihistamines
- Antacids
- Anti-diarrhea tabs
- Painkillers
- Electrolyte powder packs
- Two (2) two-inch wide rolls of gauze
- Glowsticks, preferably of multiple colors
- Good tweezers
